

Features of the Just Peace Agreement

Democratic

The Just Peace Agreement is a world-wide democratic initiative to resolve the conflict between Israelis and Palestinians in a way that delivers everything they need. Created and written by ordinary people, it is being supported and promoted by ordinary people from all round the world. We are confident this Just Peace delivers what the people of the region, Israelis and Palestinians alike, really want. We are sure they will support it too and get their leaders to adopt it and implement it, just as we will get our leaders to fulfill their parts.

Focused

The Just Peace Agreement concentrates on one issue, and provides a tailored, ideal and practical solution for that one problem: the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. By excluding all distractions and focusing on the single issue, the JPA is built on very clear principles of non-violence, democracy, parity and finality. It then proceeds to spell out the fine details of aims, timing, legal authority, funding and resources needed to fulfill all the promises of the agreement.

Rolling

The Just Peace Agreement is here on the web right now, attracting millions of ordinary people from all over the world to sign up online and support it. As soon as one of the principal parties decides they want the Just Peace Agreement to be implemented, they publicly state their intention to adopt it and start to implement the parts of the agreement that are their responsibility, even before the opposite party does so and before the agreement is formally signed. When all the parties join in the early stages of implementation, they can go ahead and sign the agreement. Implementation rolls on over the following fifteen years and beyond, to achieve all the aims of the agreement.

Forward Looking

The Just Peace Agreement always looks to the future state that it is aiming at, and not back at the past. So nothing in the agreement is punishment or revenge or oppression or control. Everything is reaching forward to mutual co-operation, harmony, equality, justice and peace. Yet the agreement is very practical as well as idealistic. It specifies in extraordinary detail exactly how this future state is to be attained.

Inclusive

The Just Peace Agreement includes everyone. All the parties and groups among the Palestinians and Israelis can adopt it, sign it, and work to implement it, confident that it will deliver what they truly require. Every country in the world can join in, become a co-signatory, and help, because the help of every country and every person in the world is needed to fulfill the promise of this agreement.